It's normal for hidden orders to be prioritized after visible orders in a market's limit order book, so by sending a hidden order you negatively impact your queue position, as your order gets queued behind all visible and hidden orders at that price level (in contrast to being queued at the end of the visible orders, when sending a visible order). Hidden orders, are, of course, sent through whatever infrastructure you're using, so your broker can see them just as it sees your normal order flow.
