The key life skill is good decision-making. This skill is not innate, says Dr. Jim Taylor, a childhood specialist in psychology. It is learned through repetition and practice. Some other types of skills you can help your child learn include money management, personal hygiene, study skills, social skills and how to make healthy food choices 1 □

The Importance of Teaching Life Skills to Children ...

Family life is where healthy habits are formed. Exercise as a family, and work together to practice good nutrition. And does your daily communication support a healthy view of the body? Your words condition children in their perception of themselves — positive or negative.

Teach your child to know herself One of the greatest keys to wisdom is honestly being able to look at yourself in the mirror and know who is looking back. Children who can distinguish their own strengths and weaknesses are apt to make better decisions based on their abilities. American Idol was a good example of this.

10 Ways to Teach Your Children to Make Wise Decisions ...

Jesus teaches in Mark 10:18, "No one is good but God alone." "Good" is such an all-purpose term, especially for children, that it loses any real sense of meaning. To help children better understand what it means that God is good, have them cut out large yellow or orange circles and inch-wide strips of paper.

Life Is Not Fair (and Neither Is God) | Ministry-To-Children

Through many of life's difficulties we are made more like Jesus. "We who live are always being given over to death for Jesus's sake, so that the life of Jesus also may be manifested in our mortal flesh" (2 Corinthians 4:11). Life is hard because God is good. Jesus uses these hard things in life to make us strong and more like him.
