The book itself is an excellent review of Contemporary Irish poetry. However, the seller - Daily Deals - advertised it in "Good" and "Clean" condition - with "light amount of wear." It was in anything but good condition - the pages were heavily yellowed. Daily Deals describes almost all of its books on Amazon as in "Good" condition and "Clean."

First published in February 1936, just under a year from when the idea for it was first discussed, this is one of the most important and influential anthologies of the twentieth century. Since then three further editions by, in succession, Anne Ridler, Donald Hall and Peter Porter have been published.

The Faber Book of Modern Verse by Michael Roberts

Taking the death of Yeats in 1939 as its starting point and ending in the 1980s, The Faber Book of Contemporary Irish Poetry offers unusually generous selections from the work of ten writers - Patrick Kavanagh, Louis MacNeice, Thomas Kinsella, John Montague, Seamus Heaney, Michael Longley, Derek Mahon, Paul Durcan, Tom Paulin and Medbh McGuckian. Edited by Paul Muldoon, himself widely regarded as the leading Irish poet of his generation, this anthology provides a fine introduction to the ...

The Faber Book of Modern Verse really has made him stand out as one of my favourites. This little gem goes to show that there are some diamonds in the rough out there! Unfortunately, for my tastes, a couple of the "rough" were overlooked and allowed to appear...however, there's no accounting for taste, and poetry is very personal indeed.
